CITIZEN BECKHAM.

BEAUTY'S BAD BREAK!

Frankfort's "Little Lord Fauntleroy" Defies the Law.

Pittsburgh Times.

A great cry was raised by the Goebellite conspirators who are attempting to steal the Government of Kentucky against the action of Governor Taylor in calling out troops at the time of the killing of Mr. Goebel. That event and the excitement attending it, together with the evident menace to public order then existing afforded Governor Taylor ample justification both for his calling out of the military and his adjournment of the Legislature to London. In both these acts he exercised the authority conferred upon him as Governor of the state by the Constitution, and the decisions of the Highest Courts are abundant to the effect that neither Courts nor Legislature can question his proceedings.

When Governor Taylor exercised his power of calling out the state military he was recognized by all parties as the actual Governor of Kentucky. The Goebellite members of the Legislature had not taken the action which they claim unseated Governor Taylor and created the foundation upon which Mr. Beckham now claims his office. Nevertheless, Governor Taylor was loudly denounced for calling out the military, although in doing so he was exercising only powers which his opponents well knew were conferred upon him by the Constitution and the laws. They manifested the greatest abhorrence of the alleged attempt at military rule, and even succeeded in creating some sentiment against Governor Taylor because of his use of the soldiers, among people who ought to have known better.

The hypocrisy of the Goebellites in this matter, however, has been fully exposed by the action of Mr. Beckham, who is neither actual nor legal Governor of the state, in calling out troops for the alleged purpose of protecting a Court which needed no such protection. Beckham is no more than a private citizen of Kentucky. Governor Taylor still holds the Executive Office, which he has never yet been ordered to vacate by any decision of any Court. Beckham is nothing more than a claimant in the Courts for the position upon a case which every honest and intelligent man knows has not the slightest merit. His action, therefore, in calling out the military is without warrant in law or excuse in fact, and if any trouble shall result therefrom the responsibility must rest upon his shoulders.
